Wonder Years – Little Steps, Big Purpose

Key Joyful Learning Highlights

Our youngest learners begin their journey through hands-on experiences that build independence, coordination, and early thinking skills. These joyful moments lay the foundation for confidence and curiosity. As children grow in confidence and awareness, these early experiences naturally shape meaningful daily routines.

Purpose in Routines

With growing independence, children begin to find purpose in everyday routines. Yoga becomes a mindful practice that nurtures balance, focus, and emotional well-being. These purposeful routines prepare learners to engage deeply, ask questions, and explore ideas with confidence.

Passion in Exploration

Curiosity turns into passion as PYP 1 learners take ownership of their learning. At the Light Fair, children confidently shared scientific concepts, becoming teachers themselves as PYP 2 students, and the teaching faculty joined in their exploration.

- Exploring Light: Learning by explaining and demonstrating.
- Investigating how light interacts with colour.
- Earth and Rotation: Understanding big concepts with confidence.

When children are given voice and ownership, learning transforms into achievement.

The Student Leadership Elections at GGS were conducted smoothly with enthusiastic participation from PYP students. The process aimed to nurture leadership skills, confidence, responsibility, and an understanding of democratic values among students.

On day 1, nominated students delivered well-prepared speeches with guidance from their Homeroom Teachers, ensuring fairness through speech-only campaigning. Digital voting for House Captain and Vice-Captain positions was also conducted.

On day 2, candidates addressed the school during the assembly, sharing their vision and ideas as student leaders.

This was followed by grade-wise voting using ballot boxes with candidates' names and photographs. Students cast their votes in a disciplined and systematic manner, gaining firsthand experience of a traditional voting process. Post-voting, all ballots were compiled and verified by the Election Committee, ensuring transparency and fairness. The results were scheduled to be announced the following day. The Student Leadership Elections were a valuable learning experience, empowering students to raise their voices, make informed choices, and develop a strong sense of responsibility. We appreciate the cooperation of teachers and students for making this initiative a meaningful and successful event.

From Globe to Greatness: Discovering the Elizabethan Era

MYP 4 students explored the Elizabethan era by engaging with differentiated resources and inquiry-based questions. Working collaboratively in groups, students researched key social, historical, and cultural features of the period, analyzed aspects of Elizabethan architecture, and examined the importance of theatre, especially the Globe Theatre in shaping artistic expression. Through structured discussions and visual/article analysis, students made meaningful connections between Elizabethan society and the setting and characters of A Midsummer Night's Dream. This activity strengthened students' research and critical thinking skills, while also developing collaboration, communication, and reflection as they prepared for deeper engagement with the play.

Big Questions of Justice and Equality: Visualizing Historical Fiction

MYP 1 students recently explored the theme of identity and injustice through a collaborative English Language and Literature project on apartheid. Working in groups, students created powerful multimodal products to deepen their understanding of racial segregation in South Africa. One group designed informative infographics explaining the pass laws, while another produced striking anti-apartheid campaign posters. Students also curated moving photo essays depicting lived experiences of segregation and developed short documentary-style videos highlighting influential anti-apartheid activists. The task encouraged critical thinking, empathy, research skills and creative expression, allowing students to engage meaningfully with history beyond textbooks.

Beyond Assumptions: An Interdisciplinary Inquiry in Maths & Physics

This interdisciplinary investigation encouraged learners to think critically and reflectively, embodying the IB learner profile attributes of Thinker, Inquirer, and Risk-taker. Students moved beyond surface-level assumptions by questioning whether “higher” necessarily meant “better,” using evidence to refine their understanding. Through data analysis and modelling, they developed principled decision-making skills, recognizing the ethical responsibility engineers hold in prioritizing safety. The process also fostered open-mindedness, as students integrated perspectives from both Physics and Mathematics to form a coherent understanding of a real-world system. Such reflective learning empowers students to apply knowledge responsibly, thoughtfully, and with confidence beyond the classroom.

Ethical Dilemmas, Deadlocks, and Decision-Making in a Technological World

CP2 students explored the concepts of ethical dilemmas, deadlocks, and paradoxical perspectives through the lens of Herbert Simon's Bounded Rationality model. Students examined how decision-making is often constrained by limited information, time, and competing values, leading individuals and institutions to make "satisficing" rather than optimal choices. These ideas were meaningfully connected to the documentary To Preserve Life After Death Using Technology, which presented complex ethical questions around innovation, morality, and human identity. By analysing this real-world context, students transferred their conceptual understanding to a contemporary issue, deepening their awareness of how ethical deadlocks and bounded rationality shape professional and societal decisions.

Global Connect – Celebrating International Mindedness in German!

EVENT: KAFFEKLATSCH (GERMAN INTERACTIONS)

Our IB MYP German B students dove into an enriching virtual exchange with German natives today! Eager learners asked insightful questions about German traditions, festivals like Oktoberfest, and daily life, while proudly sharing Sikh customs, Indian festivals like Diwali, and their own cultural stories.

This vibrant interaction boosted their German language skills and deepened cultural understanding—core to IB's international mindedness. Moments like these inspire global empathy!

Candid Reflections of students:

"We spent time interacting with German guests and learned many fascinating things about their lifestyle. They explained how schools and universities operate in Germany, noting that while many schools are strict, some private schools have dress codes. We also talked about various places in Germany and discussed what they enjoy about India. Our conversation covered favorite foods, sports, subjects, and sweets. Since it was their first visit to India, we suggested tourist spots and taught them simple Hindi greetings. I would love to have more opportunities for such interactions in the future."
